JESUS THE TEACHER ICON

The Icon of Jesus the Teacher, created to mark the centenary of Scotland's Catholic schools being incorporated into the state system, has begun its 7 week tour of the Archdiocese of St Andrews and Edinburgh. The icon will tour both parishes and schools across the Archdiocese and will be in St Margaret's Church from Thursday 10th January for one week. Local catholic schools will make visits to the Church and the work of our schools will be highlighted over the weekend of 12th/13th January.

© Scottish Catholic Education Service

The icon was created by Coatbridge-based artist Bernadette Reilly and was commissioned by the Scottish Catholic Education Service. Over the course of this centenary year, the icon has been touring the eight dioceses of Scotland, with St Andrews & Edinburgh being its final destination. In the weeks ahead it will provide a focal point for prayers of thanksgiving.

The 1918 Education Act (Scotland) saw 224 Catholic schools transferred into state sector. Scotland now has 369 Catholic schools with their popularity ever increasing among Catholic and non-Catholic families. The Archdiocese of St Andrews & Edinburgh contains 10 Catholic high schools and 69 Catholic primary schools. These are operated in partnership with families and local government.
